Dorothea E. Hinman, "Words in Color"; Charles C. Fries, "Linguistics in Beginning Reading"; and Helen K. Machintosh, "Edited By."

A Trip on a Bus, Carla Greene. Lantern Press, Inc., 257 Park Avenue South, New York 10010; 1964. Clothbound. Illustrated. 61 pages. Price, $2.95.

A boy and girl and their mother take a bus tour from Los Angeles, Calif., to Flagstaff, Ariz., and the Grand Canyon. The details of planning the trip, checking and loading baggage, rest and meal stops, and sightseeing are presented for the young reader. A cutaway diagram of a bus is included.

American Literature, Andrew J. Porter, Henry L. Terrie, Jr., and Edward J. Gordon. Ginn and Co., 205 West Wacker Drive, Chicago 60606; 1964. Clothbound. Illustrated. 815 pages.

This anthology for high-school students points out three major themes of American literature: the sense of place, the individual, and the American dream. Characteristic selections of each theme are presented and others suggested. Robert Frost's poem "The Gift Outright," written for John F. Kennedy's presidential inauguration, and President Kennedy's inaugural address are among the more recent selections. Other sections are The Virginia Colony, The Puritans, Independence, A National Culture, The American Novel, and The Twentieth Century. More recent 20th-century writers included are Stewart L. Udall, James Baldwin, and Arthur M. Schlesinger, Sr.

Integration

Negro Contributors in America, Jim Newton. Fort Hamilton Press, 312 Ross Avenue, Hamilton, Ohio; 1964. Paperbound. 28 pages. Price, $1; quantity rates.

For teachers interested in pointing out to their students the role played by Negroes in American history, this publication lists little-known individuals and celebrities as well. Congressmen and government officials, entertainers, athletes, and military officers are included.

Research on School Desegregation: Review and Prospect, Meyer Weinberg. Integrated Education Associates, 343 South Dearborn Street, Chicago 60604; 1965. Paperbound. 39 pages. Price, 75 cents.

This pamphlet contains the text of an address delivered at the New England Conference on Educational Research which reports on the recent research in the classroom aspects of school desegregation. The paper draws together the principal part of the research project and ascertains its relevance for the educational task of the school. References to research are fully annotated and sources are listed.

Blueprint for Action. Institute of Human Relations, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 3238 North Downer Avenue, Milwaukee; 1964. Paperbound. 8 pages.

This outline suggests ways in which a university honestly committed to helping the Negro should first put its own house in order. The suggestions cover housing; course offerings; admissions; cooperation with secondary and elementary schools, and predominantly Negro colleges in the South; adult education; and research.

Science

The Mysterious Senses of Animals, Vitus B. Droscher. E. P. Dutton and Co., Inc., 201 Park Avenue South, New York 3; 1965. Clothbound. Illustrated. 255 pages. Price, $5.95.

This account of the mysteries of animal behavior and of the latest developments and discoveries in this field of scientific investigation draws on the work of many scientists to describe the behavior of species as varied as their accomplishments. Such phenomena as the ultrasonic devices of bats and dolphins, the heating and refrigeration methods of the incubator bird of Australia, the electric generating organs of the electric eel, the "speedometers" built into flies, and the war between wasps and spiders are described.

Young People's Science Dictionary. Childrens Press, Inc., Melmont Publishers, Inc., Jackson Boulevard and Racine Avenue, Chicago 60607; 1964. Illustrated. Clothbound. 237 pages. Price, $4.95.

This specialized dictionary defines words, ideas, and groups of words which have meanings in science that are not evident in the single words that make them up. Some words have two or more meanings, each one distinct for a special branch of science. In writing many definitions, the editors have purposely added phrases such as "as distinguished from . . ." or directions to "contrast with . . ." in order to pinpoint meanings.

Miscellaneous

The Dollhouse Book, Estelle Ansley Worrell. D. Van Nostrand Co., Inc., 120 Alexander Street, Princeton, N. J.; 1964. Illustrated. Clothbound. 123 pages. Price, $6.50.

This how-to-do-it book features 65 pages showing 120 full-size doll furniture or house patterns, all scaled to fit the modern 10- to 12-inch "Barbie" doll. There are more than 300 individual projects, including period designs such as 17th-Century Early American, 18th-Century French Provincial and Late-Colonial, and 19th-Century Victorian. Authentic-appearing accessories for the period designs (even foot and bed warmers) can be made according to the patterns and directions.
